New Phase of Woman's Rights.

The hearts of the sable legislators in Co lumbia were thrilled by the announcement of Wright that he intended to test the Civil ctrotype Advertisements will be inserted Rights bill, though it should cost him his last cent. In his own person an outrage had been inflicted upon the colored race, and by his own purse that outrage should be terribly avenged. We are informed that Wright on to be a lawyer; it is a pity he had Wright complains that he was turned out of the ladies' car. What business had he there? Does he not know that any man, of whatever color, unattended by a domestic responsibility, has no right to occupy that car? He is adowed to sit in it only by the sufferance of the conductor, and may be turned out at the will of the latter. Nor are we aware that the conductor is obliged to give a reason to any intruder why he should eave. Wright's seat may have been held in reserve for expected lady passengers, or his looks may not have been in his favor, or he may have had too much musk-on his pocket handkerchief. Who knows? The whole wrong consists in this, that the aggrieved senator tried to take a lady's place and was ordered out of it. There is no evidence to show that he or she carried the customary fan and lunch-basket, or wore her veil, her bonnet, or even her chignon. There is coason to believe that she dressed like a man, that she disputed her place like a litigous man, and blustered among the ladies like an ill-bred man, and that she was finallcarried out of the cars, and not kicked out. This is the substance of Wright's wrong.

Now as to Wright's proposed sacrifice not for the sex, as one would suppose, but for the race. Here the lawyer so clearly appears that we must ask the outraged lady's pardon for resorting sometimes to the masculine pronoun. We do not mean to prejudice the case by this little change.

"We see the Wright and we approve it too." We know the cause is lost unless she can maintain the character of an outraged lady. But Wright before the Labor Convention at Washington, or the Legislature at Columbia, s not a whit more feminine than Mrs. Dr Walker in her coat and pantaloons. Well, then, Mrs. Wright in Columbia proclaims that he will spend his last cent in vindica ting her right to sit in the ladies' car, or as she expresses it, in testing the virtue of the Civil Rights bill. That bill shall be liquidated by the turning inside out of Uncivil Wright's pockets. But, as Pope says:

"Woman's at best a contradiction still."

for it was this same lady who engaged the Labor Convention at Washington "to create 'a fund to prosecute any such case of exclusion under the Civil Rights bill, and to est the virtue of that ." That is the fund that Wright intends to work on, and we have no doubt that he will even consent to receive his fee for his work. Whether he succeeds in the case or not, she can certainly make more in that way than by stitching or darning stockings. While women are so poorly paid, what can we expect but an effort on their part to secure a larger sphere and more remunerative employment. Let preme Court, his innocence.

> It is REPORTED that Governor Scott will veto the bill to provide for the payment in coin of the interest on the State debt. His Excellency is not opposed to the bill, which was introduced with his approval and is fathered by his financial pet, but he may have sold out his bonds, or be mad because the House would not agree to pay principal as well as interest in colu. And if he does veto the bill, we suppose that it will be part of the programme to pass it over the veto without more ado. In this way Scott will seem anxious to save his "beloved State," and the bond and stock Ring will not be disappointed.

Tug Radical members of the South Caro ling Legislature are usually in the market. but their price-not to put too fine a point upon it-is a lectle high, considering the quality of the article. During the debate on the bill to pay the State debt in coin, votes in its favor sold at from $10 to $200. One coinfort is that votes will be cheaper later in the session. The members take a practical view of things, and count their honors and dignities by dollars:

For what is worth in anything, But so much money as 'twill bring'?

MEADE, the negro member of the Legisla lature, who shot Mattie Stokes, on Sunday, is still at large. Is there not in South Car olina one Radical official manly enough t arrest a Radical criminal, or is he to go "unwhipt of justice," with Representative Guffin, who incites the negrous to burn down our houses, and Representative Jones, who wants to slay and destroy "all the rebels" in the State !

Our Columbia correspondent has been informed that the State tax for 1869-70, on real and personal estate, will be only onehalf of one per cent. This news is almost pointing black men to office, thereby recognizing half of one per cent their claims as a part of the body politic. He too good to be true.

SUSAN FIELDING. A Novel. By Mrs. Annie Edwards. Author of "Archie Lovell" and "Stephen Lawronee, Yeoman." Illustrated by Sol Eytingofind Winslow Homer. New York: Sheldon & Co. Charleston: John M.

Edwards is a novelist of very decided billy. He has the rare faculty of growth to hear epeats herself either in her plot or sketches of character. Each of her three last novels has been a decided advance upon its predecessor, and in each of the three she has added a new and origical portrait of the world's picture gallery. "Archie Lovel," French" in the present novel, are new and live creatures, and each one of them will live in the reader's memory long after the multitudinous heroes and heroines of the Braddonserved oblivion. We will flot attempt an analysis of the plot of "Susan Fielding." It is worth reading by all who care for a good no vel, and we will not spoil the reader's interest by premature disclosures.

The book is evidently printed directly from the original sheets of the Galaxy magazine, in which it appears as a serial, and consequently is much marred by the uneven distribution of the chapters. It is so well gotten up in other respects that it is a pity this fault was not plete state, this last work of the veteran novelist promises to rank with his best fictions. It is graphic, vigorous and original, and its gov-erning purpose is timely and well developed. pleted. The present instalment is introduced by the following characteristic letter: "The price for 'Put Yourself in His Place,' If I were a mechanical inventor instead of a lite rary inventor, this payment would secure them the sole legal right. In the present iniquitous, partial, barbarous and brainless state of law, it only secures them a clear moral right. But I hope all respectable publishers will respect the moral right, will put them selves in their place, and will forbear to reat where they have not sown .- [Charles Reade."

MEN'S Wives, By W. M. Thackeray, New York: D. Appleton & Co. Charleston: John Russell. The name of Thackeray would sell a far worse book than Men's Wives; but it is rather hard that the public should be baited with a great name to swallow what would be tonominiously rejected if the author were Tabltha Jones or even Algernon Snooks. It is well enough to read about "The Ravenswing" and gerty's Wife," and these sketches have some of the incisiveness of "Vanity Fair," and a dash of the seeming-truth of "The Newcomes." But we want Thuckeray, the mature man, not Thackeray in (Merary) long clothes, and would prefer to see trifles. like "Men's Wives" omitted from all editions of the works of the satirist of the nineteenth century.

CIPHER, A Romanec, By Jane G, Austin, New York: Sheldon & Co. Charleston: John Russell.

This remance is now published in book form and a glance over the broad pages recalls its first appearance in the Galaxy, when a month was all too long to wait for the coming of another chapter. With some features which wil not bear criticism, "Cipher" is still a work of marked ability. The plot is ingenious and exciting, the incidents are stirring, and the mystery which enshrouds the characters and their hesitation, from first page to last. The book is wanting, perhaps, in balance and repose; but it is, nevertheless, one of the best sensational romances of the time.

An American Family in Paris. With fluy-eight illustrations of Historical Monuments and Familiar Scenes. New York: Hurd &

This little work is pleasantly written, and will give the young reader a lively idea of the appearance and characteristics of the French capital. There is nothing about the book to show that it is truly an account of the experiences of "An American Family in Paris," but care has been taken to make the local descriptions accurate, and to support the historical statements by recognized authority. The illustrations are both numerous and attractive and add much to the value of the book which should be a capital holiday gift, as the author has succeeded in giving "Young Amer-"icaus, at home and abroad, both amusement and useful knowledge, mingled in preparations which will increase the relish for each, Price $1 50.
